Statement from the Chief Executive

The South Australian Department for Correctional Services (DCS) forms a crucial part of the South Australian justice sector. DCS' core business is to safely, securely and humanely manage its prisoners and offenders, and to provide rehabilitative services and opportunities to them, with an aim to improve recidivism outcomes and to keep the community safe. DCS acknowledges the important work that the South Australian Government has undertaken with respect to the Disability Inclusion Act 2018 and the consequential establishment of Disability Access and Inclusion Plans (DAIP) for all State Authorities. DCS is therefore committed to improving its services for people with disability, with a particular focus on prisoners and offenders under DCS custody or supervision, as well as providing an environment and culture that supports its staff who live with disability.

DCS recognises the positive contribution of all its staff, and is especially mindful of the importance of diversity in the workplace. The Department has employed staff through Disability Works Australia, and some staff have secured ongoing employment through those channels. DCS will continue to work with employment agencies to ensure that people with disability are included in recruitment opportunities.

In 2016, departmental employee data indicated that approximately 1.4% of the DCS workforce lives with disability, and requires workplace adaptations. DCS acknowledges that reported disability among its workforce may be under-represented due to a variety of reasons such as, fear of judgement or lack of formal recognition or simply due to an unwillingness to share that information. DCS looks forward to a greater understanding of the impacts of disability on its workforce, by ensuring that staff feel comfortable to seek assistance or advice around improving workplace supports.

Alarming, it is well known that people with cognitive or psychosocial disability tend to be over-represented in the criminal justice system, with 18% of Australia's general population declaring a disability, whilst up to 50% of people in prison could be affected by disability. The Council of Australian Government (COAG) Prison to Work Report also found that many disability types are unidentified among Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander prisoners, resulting in unmet needs for this cohort both within the prison environment and when transitioning to community. As part of our commitment to reducing reoffending, it has been highlighted time and again how important it is to provide services that are holistic and responsive to the unique needs of different prisoner and offender cohorts, and it has become increasingly evident that disability must also be taken into account as part of rehabilitation and reintegration initiatives.

DCS looks forward to establishing, promoting and implementing its new DAIP. It is hoped that our plan will increase access to services and supports for prisoners, offenders and its workforce. Ultimately, the goals outlined within our plan are measurable steps to be taken towards a more equitable future for people with disability, where their rights are prioritised and their participation in the community is maximised.

Disability in the South Australian Population and Workforce

The Disability Inclusion Act 2018 (SA) defines disability in relation to a person as including long-term physical, psycho-social, intellectual, cognitive, neurological or sensory impairment, or a combination of any of these impairments, which in interaction with various barriers may hinder the person's full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others.

The Australian Productivity Commission's Report on Government Services (RoGS) indicates that in South Australia, 4.8% of the total population aged 5-64 is living with a form of disability, that has a severe or profound limitation on their core activities. Of that percentage, nearly 90% per cent had a specific limitation or restriction that meant they were limited in the core activities of self-care, mobility or communication, or restricted in education or employment.

In South Australia, the proportion of people with disability, aged 5-64 years, who reported that their main reason for not leaving home is due to a disability, was approximately 26%, and that figure jumped to almost 40% for people with profound or severe disability. This highlights that the South Australian community has a lot of work to do to provide for a more inclusive and accessible environment, so that if people with disability are willing and able to leave their homes, it becomes easier for them to do so.

The most recent 2020 RoGS indicates that the proportion of all people with disability in South Australia aged 15-64 years and who are employed, is approximately 50%. When comparing that figure with people of the same age group who are not classed as having a disability, their employment figure is significantly higher with approximately 81.6% being employed. In 2015, the proportion of people with disability who were underemployed in the South Australian workforce (either not employed at all, or not employed at full capacity), was approximately 10%, a figure that was much higher than the general population unemployment rate at that time. These statistics demonstrate two key points being, that workplaces need to recognise that some staff whether it is known or not, do have a disability and it is important to ensure that they have appropriate access and resources in place to support their success in the workplace; and secondly it demonstrates that more needs to be done to encourage people with disability to participate in the workforce, where possible.

Disability Legislation and the DAIP

In the broader context, the Commonwealth legislation (Disability Discrimination Act 1992) and SA legislation (Equal Opportunity Act 1984) and the SA (Disability Services Act 1993), are all instrumental in preventing discrimination and promoting the rights of people, including those with disability.

The Disability and Inclusion Act 2018 was passed in the South Australian Parliament, and published in the Government Gazette in June 2018. The establishment of this Act is to promote the rights of people with disability and in particular their rights to be included in the community and supported as equal citizens to reach their highest potential.

Prior to the establishment of the Disability Inclusion Act 2018, in 2008 Australia committed to an initiative from the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UNCRPD) to continually strive to improve the lives of people with disability. Further to this commitment, a report release entitled Strong Voices: A Blueprint to Enhance Life and Claim the Rights of People with Disability in South Australia (2012-2020) was influential in highlighting access and inclusion factors for people with disability.

The Disability Access and Inclusion Plan (DAIP) was born as a result of the Disability Inclusion Act 2018. It is the responsibility of all State Authorities including DCS: to have a DAIP in place; to call for submissions on their DAIP; to publish it on their website and the Government Gazette; and to report on the plans annually and review them within a four year period.

The underpinning principles of the DAIP are further guided by the National Disability Strategy (NDS) principles of:

- Individual autonomy
- Non-discrimination
- Participation and inclusion in society
- Acceptance of people with disability as part of human diversity
- Equal opportunities and accessibility
- Equality for men and women
- Respect for the rights of children with disabilities

It is therefore DCS' role as a government agency to ensure that mainstream services, programs and infrastructure are meeting the needs and requirements of people with disability; our workforce is diverse and inclusive of people with disability; and appropriate supports are in place to ensure the success of people with disability in the workplace.

Four Key Objectives for DAIP

The DAIP policy directions are centred on four key policy action areas, with careful consideration also being given to the South Australian context. This approach is in line with current national and state government frameworks that have shifted focus from service provision to a rights-based and person-centred approach. Essentially, this aims to result in supporting individual choice, control and independence. The four overarching objectives are listed below and within these four objectives lie state key priorities. DCS outlines its response to DAIP objectives and priorities from page 8, with a list of goals and associated actions that the department will work towards over the life of this four-year plan.

OBJECTIVE 1 Inclusive Communities for all

Social inclusion is a priority for people living with disability as it affects all aspects of their lives. It is our aim that the contributions and rights of people living with disability are valued and understood by all South Australians and that their rights are promoted, upheld and protected. We also want to ensure that people living with disability are supported to advocate for their own rights.

OBJECTIVE 2 Leadership and Collaboration

People living with disability want to have a greater role in leading and contributing to government and community decision-making. It is our aim that the perspectives of people living with disability are actively sought and that they are supported to participate meaningfully in government and community consultation and engagement activities.

OBJECTIVE 3 Accessible Communities

The accessibility of the built environment, quality services and information is key to ensuring people living with disability are included and have the opportunity to equally participate in all aspects of community life. It is our aim to increase accessibility to public and community infrastructure, transport, services, information, sport and recreation and the greater community.

OBJECTIVE 4 Learning and Employment

Workforce participation is fundamental to social inclusion. It provides economic independence and choice, social connections and friendships, value, identity and belonging. It is our aim that people living with disability have access to inclusive places of study and that education and training provides pathways to meaningful and inclusive employment and volunteering opportunities.

DAIP in the context of DCS

The DAIP acknowledges diversity within the workforce, and with particular reference to the contribution that people with disability make. The primary aim is to identify barriers for inclusion or access to services for people with disability, and how the Department can assist in overcoming such barriers.

The DAIP within the context of DCS is also responsible for ensuring accessibility and services for prisoners living with disability, for example, ensuring a prisoner's ability to access programs is not limited by a disability such as vision; hearing; or cognitive impairment, as well as being able to access facilities if they are physically impaired.

A secondary aim of the DAIP is to keep people with disability safe from violence, exploitation or neglect. There is evidence to suggest that people with disability are more vulnerable to violence, exploitation and neglect, particularly in institutional contexts where violence may be more common. People with disability are more likely to be victims of crime and there are indicators that women are also at increased risk.

DCS Staff Context

- As at March 2020, DCS employed 1948 staff, with approximately 1024 being Correctional Officers, 366 Community Corrections staff and 273 Central Office staff.
- Employees are able to self-record disability information on the CHRIS HR21 self-service kiosk system.
- Disability is expected to be under reported within the agency.
- Age-related disability onset is assumed to be under reported due to the view that it is a normal part of the ageing process, and also due concerns around stigma and/or job security.
- Staff have secured employment with DCS via Disability Employment Service (DES) providers, however direct links with DES providers are not yet established in practice for recruitment purposes.
- DCS 2018-19 Annual Report references the Equal Opportunity Act 1984, and makes mention of the introduction of part-time employment to offer staff greater employment flexibility.
- DCS staff have been encouraged to provide feedback on the creation of this DAIP to inform priorities for progress, to better support people with disability to participate meaningfully and successfully in the workplace.

As at March 2020, DCS employed

1948

staff, with approximately 1024 being Correctional Officers,

366 Community Corrections staff and 273 Central Office staff.

DCS Prisoner and Offender Context

- DCS 2018-19 Annual Report references average prisoner daily numbers at approximately 2900, and approximately 7% of that population are women offenders.
- Approximately 6000 offenders in the community, are under the supervision of DCS, with approximately 17% of that figure being women offenders.
- Disabilities that arise from mental health conditions, known as psychosocial disability, are likely the most significant disabilities that present in the prisoner cohort, and such disabilities tend to be largely over-represented in this population, with comparison to the general population.
- Disability is currently not recorded electronically for prisoners and offenders.
- Information regarding NDIS support for prisoners and offenders has only recently been made available on the DCS Justice Information System (JIS), as of August 2020.
- DCS currently supports a variety of research projects which relate to disability and in particular, which look at brain injury prevalence among prisoners; and assessing disability needs of Indigenous prisoners.
- Less than 5% of the South Australian population identifies as being Aboriginal, however in the South Australian prison context, Aboriginal people are significantly over-represented, accounting for approximately 25% of all prisoners.

DCS 2018-19 Annual Report references average prisoner daily numbers at approximately 2900

and approximately

7% of that population are women offenders.

Approximately

6000

offenders in the community, are under the supervision of DCS, with approximately 17%

of that figure being women offenders.

DCS Key Highlights (prisoners/offenders)

DCS Key Highlights (staff)

- As a result of whole of government initiatives, the introduction of flexible working arrangements have been made available to Correctional Officers (previously not widely available), and DCS is also investigating the option of casual Correctional Officer employment which will create further flexibility.
- Introduction of Wellbeing and Resilience Training offered as a two-day workshop for all staff.
- Inclusion of a requirement for hiring managers to consider the DAIP when seeking to fill vacancies, given its significance as a Chief Executive and State Government wide objective.
- DCS participation in workshops pertaining to the development of a State DAIP.
- Principal Advisor, Offender Services provided information at Correctional Officer training sessions on how disability can present in the prisoner cohort, including information from a mental health perspective.
- DCS Offender Services has implemented an NDIS program that supports eligible prisoners/offenders to access the scheme. DCS has established a partnership and meets fortnightly with the NDIA and actively maintains links to the NDIS Justice Liaison Officer. A key focus of the program is to improve prisoners and offenders' access to disability assessments, referrals and supports, thereby improving outcomes. Prisoners/offenders who receive assistance and supports through the NDIS are less likely to reoffend and more likely to build their capacity to become contributing community members. DCS has successfully referred 130 prisoners with a further 80 in progress as of July 2020. Note: 53 of the 130 are Aboriginal Prisoners.
- Continued liaison with the South Australian Disability Advocate regarding NDIS access for prisoners.
- Engaged in a partnership with SA Health with regards to an Aboriginal Model of Care, which identifies evidenced based approaches to providing health care to Aboriginal prisoners via Aboriginal Health Workers.
- Continued partnership with Forensic Mental Health and the Office of the Chief Psychiatrist, which has resulted in an assurance that prisoners continue to receive mental health support when discharged back to custody following an inpatient admission. Changes to processes have also resulted in improved identification of mental health diagnosis and psychosocial disability and increased referrals to the NDIS.
- Pilot programs tailored to prisoners/offenders with cognitive impairment, including Violence Prevention Program (VPP-ME) and Sexual Behaviour Clinic (SBC-ME).
- Engagement of Workskil Australia to provide specialist services for prisoners with disability, wanting to join the Work Ready, Release Ready Program.
- DCS Offender Services has developed a partnership with the Lifetime Support Authority (LSA) to ensure any LSA participant that is in custody is identified and their disability supports continue to be provided. The Offender Services team are the point of contact and link the LSA into the prison system. This process ensures LSA participants receive community equivalent disability support whilst in custody.
- DCS is also represented by the Principal Advisor, Offender Services on the NDIA Justice Sub Senior Officials Working Group, a national focussed working group that links into the Disability Reform Council of Australia.

DCS DAIP Alignment with Strategies, Frameworks, Policies, Procedures & State Disability Access and Inclusion Plan

The DCS DAIP aligns with the Department's Strategic Plan 2018-22 in terms of valuing equity, diversity and cultural inclusion; building a flexible and diverse workforce; and providing targeted support for offenders with disabilities and complex mental health needs.

The DAIP also aligns with the following key documents:

- The South Australian Public Sector Diversity and Inclusion Strategy
- (DCS Diversity and Inclusion Strategy)
- SA Public Sector Disability Employment Strategy, Plan and Toolkit
- Aboriginal Strategic Framework
- 10by20 Strategy
- Joint Systems Protocol (between DCS and SA Health)
- Humane Care (Policy 08)
- Aged Prisoner Care (Policy 27)
- Management and Restraint of Mentally Unwell Prisoners (Policy 42)
- Work Health and Safety Management System (Policy 16)
- Gender Equality and Respect Action Plan

DCS will give effect to the State Disability Access and Inclusion Plan by ensuring goals and strategies listed in the charts below, are in alignment with the identified State priorities.
